INDIAN TRADITIONS.

Abe Cohn and Jim Torreyson
Revive a Good One.

Abe Cohn and Jim Torreyson have occasion to reach out and make good use of the redman. It may as well be stated here that the redman is not getting the worst of it either. Some days ago one of our native braves grunted into the ear of Torreyson, the fact that he was anxious to locate a mine of fabulous wealth that had been found toward the South. He was informed that an Indian could not locate mineral claims, and James with his far seeing eye offered to stand in, merely as a precautionary measure. Abe Cohn was approached also, and a pow-wow was decided upon, the result being that Abe and Jim were let in upon the understanding that they were to put up the grub stake, the miners, etc., and give the redman one-third of the gross output.

"Injun man no likum pinenuts; Injun man no likum poker; Injun man no likum jack-labbits; Injun man likum mine; said Captain Pete who presided over the pow-wow."

"Yash," announced Cohn in his best Indian dialect, "White man he pikum for Indian. Ough."

It was then and there agreed that Jim and Abe were to appear on a certain day at a certain place and receive an iron-clad tip. The spot was at the north end of Angelop Valley and Captain Pete was to be on hand to receive them. After the usual preliminaries, such as borrowing horses, and securing anti-sun-stroke juice, together with a little food for trading purposes, the two whites went to the selected spot.

After their arrival there they were surprised to observe a broad waste of alkali uninterrupted by the presence of a red skin.

"What 't' ell!" exclaimed Torreyson, reaching for the sun-stroke remedy.

"We have been driven unto this wild and desolate country," answered Cohn "to be murdered with buckshot and our jug will be taken away. Pass it quick Jim."

Just then a solitary Indian popped up from behind a lone sagebrush and said: Where's Pete? Abe finished before setting down the jug and made answer:

"Where's the mine?" The redskin then got off the following verse:

"Pete come sometime. Then you gettum mine."

A long parley ensued and Abe and Jim were forced to return to Ormsby County and resurrect Pete from the campodies. On the following day they returned with Pete and a mounted escort of redmen. They were guided to the Alkali flat and directed to one corner.

"Well we're here," said Jim "now where your mine?"

"Down there," answered one of the Indians pointing to a bare spot. "You dig."

The ground had the appearance of having been disturbed and work was begun there.

"After we had gone down a few feet," said Abe Cohn to an APPEAL man yesterday, "we uncovered one of the finest ledges of gold you ever saw. I was paralyzed and after hanging my hat on a nugget that proceeded from the quartz, I sat down and wiped the excitement off my M. B. (massive brow) and we took what was left of the refreshments just for luck. We located one claim and as it was getting late, we instructed the Indians how to locate another parallel to it. We wrote on the notices and left about sunset, leaving a man there to go on prospecting."

"It appears that some white men heard of the find and went over there. When the Indians saw them coming, they yanked the stakes out of the first claim and took up situations on the second, holding up the notices in the air and brandishing them as a claim over the ground. They held the two claims against the whites and we have got the richest find in Nevada. Top rock goes $400 23 a ton, and gets richer as it goes down. Leave it to us," concluded Abe waving his hand and disappearing into the store, where he sold four two-bit collars for 20 cents.

She Paid the Costs.

On opening the doors of the Justice Court yesterday morning there was a large crowd of leading citizens falling over each other to secure front seats.

May Williams had been beaten by a man, Bill Hyzer the day before and she had sworn out a complaint. A jury of twelve good men were in their places and the complaining witness was called upon to stand up and be sworn. As soon as she took the oath she said that she wished to withdraw the complaint. The Court said that she could do so but the dignity of the City had been outraged to the extent of $27 costs which she would have to cough up at once. The woman was immediately taken with a fit of hiccoughs and raised the amount which she laid on the clerk's desk. The defendant who was also in court promised the Judge that he would in future treat Miss Williams more tenderly and the case was dismissed.

Cheered in the House.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs, after a warm session of two hours today, adopted a concurrent resolution declaring that it was the sense of Congress that a state of war existed in Cuba and that Cuban insurgents should be given the rights of belligerents, and that the Government of the United States should use its influence to stop the war if necessary by intervention; and pledging the support of Congress. The resolution was greeted with cheers when read in the House, and Sulzer asked for the unanimous consent that the resolution be made a special order for Tuesday.

Gold in Petrification.

Gold continues to be found in queer places in Pine Nut. Mr. Grossman brought in a piece of petrified wood yesterday from the Zinn mine which had free gold in it. It is now on exhibition at the Ormsby House.

There is a probability that Senator Teller of Colorado will be the nominee of the National Silver Convention for President and that he will be endorsed by the People's party National Convention.

CHEAP CUSTOM WORK A DECEPTION.

A style of tailoring is rapidly gaining headway which is but an imposition upon the consumer and a detriment to the workman. The cheap custom work or what is called "special order work," is a shrewd dodge for the purpose of deceiving the customer into the belief that he is obtaining custom work at ready made prices. The real worth of custom work lies in the exactness of the fit, and the thoroughness in which it is made. Cheap custom work is therefore inferior to ready made work.

Large concerns, some also engaged in ready made work have grown up of late and depend for patronage upon retail stores, and have numerous agents scattered everywhere soliciting orders and gain trade because of the strikingly cheap prices offered for goods made to order. As a rule these agents seldom obtain an order twice from the same person.

It is about time that this scheme was exposed to the people and ABE COHN of the EMPORIUM shows up the fraud. If you want clothes that fit and are tried on as often as is necessary call at the EMPORIUM Court House Building, Carson City, Nevada.
